STONING, N. Y., Aug. 27.—From

the candidacy for the office of surrogate of an up-State county that of President of the United States is a long step, but it represents the political aspiration of All Parker, who by the shrewd politicians his managers was made the nominee for the highest offices at St. Louis a few years ago. Twenty-seven years intermediate Judge Parker's first nomination for the political office and his last election in 1877, and in January of the following year became sur-turns had been received from all of the districts in the county except district No. 2 of the town of Kingston, better known as the Jockey Hill district. Though the voting place was only a few miles away, no report was at hand, and no one knew what had become of the returns.

The Only Close Contest.

The only close contest was that between Cantine and Parker for the office of surrogate. Cantine was in the lead even if Parker polled every known vote in the Jockey Hill district. The people went home convinced that he had been elected.

The next day the returns from Jockey Hill were still missing, and messengers were sent out to round up the election officials. The returns were finally produced properly signed and filed out. They gave the Democrats a majority larger than the entire vote of the district and elected Parker surrogate by the narrow margin of 44 votes. Although the voting population of the district did not greatly exceed 200, the figures on the returns gave Parker 318 and Cantine 59, making their respective totals 732 and 749. Parker was the only county candidate whose election depended on the Jockey Hill vote.

An idea of the character of the district which gave Judge Parker his first majority and started him on the road to the Presidential nomination can be gained from the exciting campaign incidents of the period. Stony Hollow is three and a half miles from Kingston and less than a mile from Jockey Hill. The inhabitants of both regions were largely quarrymen of the roughest sort. In summer they worked in the blue-stone quarries and in the winter they lived off the town. Their chief interest in politics was to see that men they could control were elected overseers of the poor. The bills of the county, off and on, for years, in 1878, the year Parker first served as surrogate, the bills of the several overseers of the poor which went to nearly $11,000, much of a campaign riot which will not be forgotten in Kingston for a long time. The Hayes and Wheeler club of Kingston, under Maj. Albert Tanner, who is now in the employ of the State on a special train to raise a pole and banner for the local Hayes and Wheeler club. Word of their coming reached Jockey Hill, and a crowd of ruffians formed to prevent the pole raising. They descended on the visitors in force, and there was a bitter fight, in which several received wounds from which they never fully recovered. John T. Bond, quartermaster of Kingston, and Frank Worlton were shot. Maj. Tanner had his nose broken.

Others Badly Wounded.

Among others badly wounded were "Joe" Brackett, Cornelius Brackett, the "Jockey Hill" constable, "Mike" Lamb, and brother Richard, president of the Kingston Republican club, and a man named Morgan. The Kingston party would doubtless have been wiped out if they had not possessed an old-fashioned cannon, brought along for snail shooting. It was pointed on a flat car, and when the train began to move, it was loaded with stones and turned on the Jockey Hill crowd. The train fairly crept back to Kingston, for the Hayes and Wheeler track runs along the edge of deep gorges, and it was feared that the angry quarrymen would attempt to wreck the train. After they had driven off the Republicans, the Democrats from the hills tore down the American flag and chopped up the pole. In 1879 the Democrats did not put up a town ticket, but joined with the old-time Democrats to elect officers who would keep down the town expenses, especially in the dispensing of winter supplies of food and clothing to the quarrymen. A party called themselves, started for Stony Hollow to look into election affairs. Just outside of Kingston, in Mutton Hollow, near Barney Johnson's place, they met a party of rowdies from the hills. A bitter fight began immediately, and word was sent into Kingston that there was about to be a massacre. The local militia under Capt. John E. Craft was called out by Sheriff William C. Webb, and the quarrymen were driven back.

Sentiment in Kingston.

Kingston has already got over the first flush of joy at the preferment of one of its townsmen, and the voters are beginning to look into Judge Parker's career. A triangular controversy between the Rev. J. G. Van Slick of the Dutch Reformed church of Kingston, Dr. P. B. Collier, a co-worker in the church, and Jay C. Klock, editor of the Kingston Daily Freeman, has started general comment which is bringing much of Judge Parker's political history to the attention of the younger voters.

Dr. Van Slick wrote an article of appreciation of Judge Parker for the Outlook. It contained nothing political, and was simply the minister's estimate of the man as a neighbor. But Editor Klock thought that the publication of the article at the present time was entirely misleading and replied to it with an editorial in a jocular vein. In defense of his pastor Dr. Collier, who is the friend of Judge Parker, Klock thought that the publication of the article at the present time was entirely misleading and replied to it with an editorial in a jocular vein. GROVER AS THE "MODERN JOB"

Had Troubles Like the Man of Old.

Warren Foster Points Out

Wonderful Similarity of Careers.

Former President Cleveland, Once

Rebilled by His Party, Now

Its Only Leader.

Poor old Job certainly had enough of life's woes while he labored on this earth to entitle him to a peaceful rest in his grave. I beg pardon of the old fellow for calling him out of his sleep for any purpose, but more particularly for the purpose of instituting a comparison with himself and Grover Cleveland. Comparisons are oftentimes invidious, but this one is unusually so.

Those acquainted with the history of Grover Cleveland know that he bears the honor, or rather the distinction of being the only successful man in the Democratic party since the war. He is the only man the party has ever been able to elect.

from the wilderness, and smote the four corners of the house, and it fell among the young men, and they are dead; and I only am escaped alone to tell thee.

Then He Had the Smallpox.

As if this were not aggravation enough, he then took the smallpox, and must have had a case of it—confident form, most likely. The story says:

"So we stand short by the presence of the Lord, and smote Job with sore boils from the sole of his foot unto his crown."

"And he took him a potsherd to scrape himself withal, and he sat down among the ashes."

"Now when Job's three friends heard of all this evil that was come upon him, they came every one from his own place. Eliphaz the Temanite, and Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Naamathite; for they made an appointment together to come to comfort him."

"And when they lifted up their eyes afar off, and knew him not, they lifted up their voice, and wept; and they rent every one his mantle, and sprinkled dust upon their heads toward heaven."

"So they sat down with him upon the ground seven days and seven nights, and none spake a word unto him: for they saw that his grief was very great."

How like Carlele, Belmont and Morgan comforting Grover.

Turn in the Lane.

It is a long lane that has no turning. So with Job. The scene is shifted. Job had touched bottom, and he begins to rise.

"Then came there unto him all his brethren, and all his sisters, and all they that had been of his acquaintance before, and did eat bread with him in his house: and they bewailed him, and comforted him over all the evil that the Lord had brought upon him: every man also gave him a piece of money, and every one an ear of gold."

"So the Lord blessed the latter end of Job more than his beginning; for he had fourteen thousand sheep, and six thousand camels, and a thousand yoke of oxen, and a thousand she-asses."

"And he rose up again. We have no account of how many sheep Grover owned, or camels, or yokes of oxen; but we do know that he is leading the biggest drove of asses ever led by any man, and they are all singing by night and by day."

"He causeth me to lie down in green pastures. He leadeth me beside the still waters; he restoreth my soul."

WOMEN, RICH AND POOR, RELY UPON PE-RU-NA.

It is Essentially a Successful Home Remedy and is Taken at Home.

Invalid Women Apply by Thousands for Dr. Hartman's Free Home Treatment by Letter.

Women are everywhere talking about Peru-na.

"To be healthy," is the slogan of women everywhere. The busy days have not a moment to be given over to ill-health. Every one is seeking a remedy that will cure.

Peru-na, because there are no narcotics used in its composition, is a cure, not a stimulant.

Women tell each other of the wonders Peru-na has wrought. Not only do they tell, but they write of it, and hundreds of letters, that necessitate a large force of clerks to assort, reach Dr. Hartman every day from grateful have-been patients, but who are now well.

The reason that Peru-na is such a special favorite with women is something more than all this.

Women are subject to pelvic catarrh. This condition has been called all sorts of names and is often referred to under the general phrase, female diseases. Peru-na cures these cases. Peru-na cures them because it cures catarrh wherever located. The nature of most of these ailments is catarrhal.

Catarrh is liable to attack any organ of the body. It is especially liable to attack one or more organs of the female pelvis. No wonder women talk about Peru-na. No wonder they think it is the greatest medicine in the world.

Pe-ru-na Brought Health and Happiness.

Miss Nellie South, late of Manchester, England, writes from 85 Prince Arthur street, Montreal, Can., as follows:

"Peru-na has made a wonderful change in my life. It has brought me health and happiness. Since my seventeenth year with female complaint, and irregularities my general health suffered. I had pains in my back and lower limbs, my eyes were dim, and I became morose and unreasonable. Mother sought the advice of our family physician, who prescribed for me, but I grew no better under his treatment. I then read of Peru-na and procured a bottle. That one bottle was worth more than all the doctors' medicine I had previously taken. I felt so much better and kept on taking it for six weeks with marked improvement in my health. I cannot express my gratitude. Peru-na has been a great blessing to me."—Miss Nellie South.

Pe-ru-na Cures Catarrh of the Bladder.

Mrs. B. C. Appleget, Royal Center, Ind., writes:

"Last winter I was troubled with catarrh of the bladder. I tried several different remedies, and also went to a physician, who said I would have to go through an operation. But I objected to that, so my husband got me a bottle of Peru-na to try. It did me so much good that I got two more, and by the time I had taken three bottles, I was well. I think Peru-na is a fine medicine and would advise all people suffering with catarrh to take Peru-na. I cannot thank you enough for what you have done for me."—Mrs. B. C. Appleget.

I began taking it when I was in a decline, induced by female weakness and overworked nerves. I began to feel stronger during the first week I took Peru-na and my health improved daily until I am in perfect health and enjoy life as I never did before."

Dr. Hartman's Correspondence.

In view of the great multitude of women suffering from some form of female disease and yet unable to find any cure, Dr. Hartman, the renowned gynecologist, has announced his willingness to direct the treatment of as many cases as make application to him during the summer months without charge.

The treatment will be conducted by correspondence. The doctor will prescribe all medicines, applications, hygienic and dietary regulations necessary to complete a cure. The medicines prescribed can be obtained at all drug stores. This offer will hold good only during the summer months. Any woman can become a regular patient by sending a written statement of her age, condition of life, history and symptoms of her derangements.

All cases of female diseases, including menstrual irregularities, displacements, ulcerations, inflammations, discharges, irritation of the ovaries, tumors and dropsy of the abdomen, should apply at once and become registered as regular patients. All correspondence will be held strictly confidential.

No one knows better than Dr. Hartman how much the women suffer with diseases peculiar to their sex. No one knows better than he does how many of them suffer with such diseases. Patiently, tenderly, we are recording every month. No other physician in the world has received such a volume of enthusiastic and grateful letters of thanks as Dr. Hartman for Peru-na.
